What 'bout Orangevale

I like the history... I like the community.

Amber D.

What's not to like?

Nathian L.

What do you think of it?

Ted R.

Ever since I moved here, I've never wanted to leave. That was a long time ago.

Sally G.

I like that it is in between Folsom and Citrus Heights. And Roseville.

Christine P.

What about it?

Terry D.

I chose to live in Orangevale because of my kids.

Tammy K.

I love it here. Rather be no place else.

Larry P.

This place sucks! It's too far from anywhere!

Amy H.

Uh... I'm not from Orangevale... just passing through.

Jason C.

Who Cares?

Mandy L.

What? This place? It sucks.

Marty O.

I like my neighborhood - I like my neighbors. This is a very good place to live.

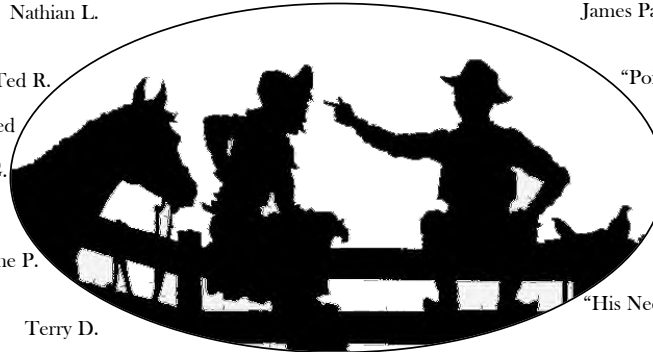

Sighn D.

I keep wonder why I stay here.

Karen F.

What's not to like? The snow is up there, the ocean is that way, the river is there, and I'm in the middle.

Troy C.

Last Book You Read

791 Viper installation manual.

Mike L.

It was a mystery book: "The Fifth Horseman" by James Patterson.

Mike J.

"Pointman" about Vietnam

Terry D..

The Bible.

Brent R..

I am reading one right now called "Someone to Love." It's a romance book.

Jamie P.

"His Needs, Her Needs"

Christina R.

Over the Publisher's Fence

Well, you might have noticed that the paper got thicker. You might have noticed that you got this paper in the mail this time, instead of your driveway.

I've taken my time creating this newspaper. The Orangevale News is a hard act to follow. Especially when Jim ran it.

I hope you like it.

But I have had a couple of doubts lately - tab vs. super tab: what do you think: should I extend the page size 4 inches from top to bottom?

What about text on the front page?

A whole story on the front page?

My goal is to create a newspaper to last the next 50 years of OrangeVale history. Let me know what you think about OUR community newspaper at publisher@orangevalejournal.com publisher@orangevalejournal.biz
